MAN KILLED ON THE GREEN BAY.

JOHN GRAFT OF CITY POINT THE VICTIM.

Was Riding on the Track Before Daylight on Home Made Velocipede When He was Struck by the Engine.—Lived only Fifteen Minutes.—No Fault of Train Crew.

John Graft, a resident of City Point, was struck by an engine on the Green Bay & Western road on Tuesday and almost instantly killed, one of his legs being cut in two at two places and his head crushed, so that he died within a very few minutes after being picked up.

Graft was riding along the track on a homemade velocipede on his way east from City Point, and had reached a place about a mile from the station when he was struck by the engine. He was seen by the trainmen just before he was struck, tho it was dark at the time, but not in time to stop. The engine was running light, being on her way to City Point to get water.

Tuesday was an unlucky day for the Green Bay all around. The freight that leaves here at four o'clock had pulled out with a fairly good train. The crew had stopped at Walker to set out a car, and this being accomplished, had started on again. The train had just gathered a speed of about twenty miles an hour when it broke in two.

The break caused the air brakes to set on the front end very suddenly and the cars behind the break came into the front end with fearful violence, making kindling wood of three of the cars and injuring three others so badly that they will have to be taken to the shops. Nobody was hurt at this time, and the engine was run to Dexterville to summon help, the track being blocked with the debris of the wreck. At this time the water in the boiler was getting low and it was decided to run to City Point for a fresh supply. It was while making this run that Graft was struck. The engine was stopped at once and the injured man picked up, but it was evident at once that he could not survive more than a few minutes. The engine had been running at a good rate of speed and had struck the unfortunate man hard enough to kill him, besides which the locomotive had passed over him. Pat McCabe of Winona was in charge of the train, and Engineer Crane of Green Bay was driving the engine.

Of course it was no fault of the train crew that either accident happened, but still they do not like to run over men and have smashups, even tho they may escape blame in the matter. A man who will run along the right of way of a railroad at night on a velocipede is certainly of a reckless nature, and almost anyone should realize that there is great risk in the matter, and should govern himself accordingly.

Want Co-Operative Plant.

George H. Reynolds of Marshfield was in the city on Monday, looking over the town with apparent interest. One of the objects of Mr. Reynolds' visit here was to look over our electric light plant and also to learn something about the methods of operating a co-operative plant as it has been done so successfully here.

He conferred with Judge Gaynor on the latter subject, and there is no question but what he went to the proper man for his information in the matter. It seems that Marshfield has been getting weary of an exceptionally poor light service at a price that is in many cases prohibitive.

Marshfield should have been able to produce light as cheaply in the past as Grand Rapids, as they have had many wood working plants there that could have supplied fuel as cheaply as it has been done here. It seems, however, that while the consumers have paid an enormous rate for lights, it has not netted the proprietor of the plant anything in particular, owing to the fact that the equipment of the concern has been of such an antiquated pattern that it has been impossible to do anything but charge antiquated prices for light service.

It is to be hoped that our neighbors up the line will get what they are looking for.

Hurt his Wrist.

August Carlson, who works in the Port Edwards paper mill received a painful wound this afternoon. The wood hook caught him in the wrist and tore an ugly wound. A physician was summoned from this city to dress the hurt.

A Nice Entertainment.

The entertainment given at the Lincoln high school on Thursday evening was well attended by an appreciative audience and the young folks carried off the affair in a manner that did credit to both themselves and their instructors.

The first on the program was a selection by the high school orchestra and the boys did so well that the audience would not give up until they had been brought out a second time. The boys certainly have a nice musical organization, one that they should enjoy greatly.

The recitation, "The Fate of Virginia," by Elsie Dupre, was handled in a manner that was above criticism, and was greatly enjoyed by the audience. The next was a musical selection by the girls quartet, which was also rendered in a very happy manner, and caused great enthusiasm among the audience.

The next on the program was a debate, the question being, "Resolved, that the United States Government should own and operate its own railroads." The affirmative was taken by Clay Lamerton and Charley Loeffelbein and the negative by Frank Nimtz and Charley Nash. The Negative side won, but it was no walkaway, and many thought that the decision should have been given to the affirmative. The boys fought every inch of the ground valiantly, and both sides are entitled too much credit for the manner in which they handled the matter.

The high school orchestra then played a very pretty set of waltzes, after which there was an exhibition of wand exercise by the girls which was very pretty and handled in a manner that showed perfect training.

Nathalie Hunnel spoke a selection from Mrs. Wiggs, describing the first theatre party from the cabbage patch, and she did it in a manner that was most entertaining, bringing out all the funny expressions of Mrs. Wiggs that have become so well known to the American people.

The club swinging by the boys was also very good, as was also a dumbell drill by the girls. The boys' chorus then sang "Asleep in the Deep," and Anthony Loose gave a reading entitled "The Second Table" which was quite characteristic of the small boy, and pleased the audience greatly.

The evening's entertainment ended with a selection by the orchestra, after which the audience departed for their homes feeling that their evening had been well spent.

Women's Club Entertains.

The Woman's Club of Grand Rapids scored another of its social successes at the function given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Lipke on High street on Wednesday evening last.

Mrs. Lipke, who had so kindly thrown open her large and commodious home for the occasion, also furnished dainty and bountiful refreshments.

Mrs. Youker, the president of the society, in her usual gracious manner announced the following program:

Miss Williams gave two instrumental numbers "La Fruse," by Raffi, and "Rustles of Spring," by Smiling, which proved her an artist in her profession.

The debate on the question, "Resolved, That a Woman's Club is Beneficial," was a very happy thought of the committee on entertainment, as it certainly brought forth considerable fun. The affirmative was taken by Mrs. W. F. Kellogg supported by Mrs. B. M. Vaughan and Mrs. John E. Daly, the negative by Prof. H. S. Youker supported by Geo. W. Mead and Theo. W. Brazeau. The judges, J. A. Gaynor, W. J. Conway and T. A. Lipke, with their unfailing judicial discernment and fairness, promptly gave their decision in favor of the affirmative. A large majority of those who listened to the debate say that the men were not "in it" at any stage of the game.

Miss Jessica MacFarlane of Marshfield gave her listeners much pleasure in the rendition of the vocal number, "A Gypsy Maid," and again at the close of the program the pretty ballad entitled, "Violets."

In the game or progressive dominoes Mrs. Geo. R. Gardner and Mr. A. G. Miller were presented with prizes for having the highest score, while Mr. Brazeau remained disconsolate at the foot.

The guests were loath to leave the festive scene, but departed with the best of wishes for the future success and prosperity of the Woman's Club.

—500 men wanted to eat hot lunch and unload schooners on Thursday and Friday.

Fatally Injured.

Peter Damske, a young farmer of Rudolph, was accidentally shot by a companion near his home Sunday afternoon, and was so badly injured that the attending physicians have little hope for his recovery. The two men had been hunting rabbits and Damske's companion, at the time of the accident, was engaged in unloading a rifle when it was accidentally discharged in Damske's direction.

The ball entered his right hip and passed through the femur bone, severed the right femur artery, and passed through the abdomen, causing internal hemorrhage. He was attended by Drs. Looze of this city and Rogers and Gregory of Stevens Point. They succeeded in stopping the hemorrhage but owing to the general shock and derangement of the organs of the body they believe it will be impossible for the man to survive. He is about 30 years of age and has a wife and four children.

A New Year Event.

The west side firemen have their bills out for their annual ball which occurs on Friday evening, January 1st. The public at large should make it a point to attend this event, as the boys promise to make it one of the best affairs of the kind that has occurred in the city for some time. The dances of the west side firemen have come to be a regular new year feature, and they are always largely attended. The price of admission will be $1.50, with refreshments free.

Burial of Albert St. Amour.

The body of Albert St. Amour was buried in this city on Monday, the remains having brought here from Chicago, where the deceased had made his home for a number of years. He died of consumption. Mr. St. Amour was born and raised in this city and is remembered by the old residents, tho he moved away many years ago. The remains were accompanied here by a brother of the dead man who also lives in Chicago.

A Hot Time in the Old Town.

If all the accounts are true, there was a warm time at Necedah on Saturday, and it all grew out of the business rivalry between two of the merchants of that city. It seems that a Mr. Greenberg of that city had decided to celebrate the fifteenth anniversary of his business career in that city in a fitting manner, and in order to do it up brown he sent to this city and secured the services of twelve members of the local band to go there and play for the edification of his customers. During the day a parade was given, in which the band participated. In the meantime a rival firm by the name of Gross & Silverman had decided to also have something doing about their place of business, and in order to enliven the occasion properly the latter firm sent to this city and secured the services of the Big 4.

When Greenberg's parade started out the opposition firm concluded that there was a good chance to advertise, so they rigged up a banner and got a man into the parade. Silverman, however, objected to this, and the result was that the man with the banner was ejected from the parade and his banner broken over his head.

This was too much for human endurance, and a lawsuit was the immediate result. Oscar Bandelin was playing with the band and he was retained by Goldberg to handle his side of the case. The case came up before a justice of the peace, but as one of the interested parties claimed prejudice, the case was taken to another justice.

In the evening Greenberg gave a dance, and one of the rival merchants appeared on the scene, apparently with the intention of enjoying himself, but Greenberg objected to this and the result was that the would-be reveler was asked to pass up the fandango and make himself scarce about the premises. This he did and the remainder of the evening passed off without any exciting incident.

The band boys say that Necedah is a warm town when once you get things stirred up there, but that it takes considerable to get them started.

Ows to Old Murder.

Twenty years ago Marvin M. Fenner of Westfield was convicted of murdering John L. Hesler of the same place. He pleaded not guilty at the time but was sentenced to prison for life on circumstantial evidence. For twenty years he has maintained that he was innocent. Now he has made a confession of his guilt and has applied to Gov. La Follette to change the sentence to murder in the second degree, thus setting him free.

The crime was committed on Jan. 15, 1883. Fenner, who worked in a lumber camp near Auburndale, went to Westfield and purchased a mule team from Hesler for $400. The two men then started out for a lumber camp, where Sherry station is now located. As the country at that time was thickly wooded the men became lost. They succeeded, however, in reaching a lumber camp and inquired their way. The next morning Fenner appeared alone at the camp.

Hesler's relatives instituted a search, with the result that Fenner was arrested. The body was found. The skull was pierced by two bullets and much battered.

In the confession that Fenner now makes he says that he was mending the sleds, when the mules backed up on him. He told Hesler to drive on, but this he alleges Hesler refused to do. The pain caused by the sleds enraged Fenner, and he seized his revolver and fired, two bullets striking Hesler in the head, causing immediate death.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

JOHN AND JAMES

They got mixed at their birth, and it was never settled which saw the light of day first, a question which caused many hot disputes between the twins, for each claimed a seniority over the other of about five minutes. While still in the cradle they were named John and James, and their mother marked them with ribbons, John with a red and James with a blue.

When they reached the proper age they were sent to the district school, still wearing the colored ribbons by which to distinguish them, and so it happened that they got the nicknames of Red Jack and Blue Jim.

Both were full of pranks and kept their teacher in a constant worry. If Jack did something for which he expected a reprimand, he would exchange ribbons with Jim, and the teacher could not tell which one to punish.

At sixteen the twins were sent to college in a distant state, where their wonderful resemblance led to much sport among the college boys and held the faculty at a great disadvantage.

Both boys were athletic and joined the baseball and boat clubs. They were popular and soon made many friends and managed to fall in love with sisters.

Jack's sweetheart was named Mary and Jim's Jennie, and each girl presented her lover with a ring as a mark of recognition.

But the fun loving spirits of the twins led them to play jokes even on their sweethearts, and the rings and ribbons were often transferred, and while Jack called upon Jennie Jim would be visiting with Mary.

"Jack," said Mary on one of these occasions when she was entertaining Jim unawares, "father says when we get married he will set you up in business."

"That is very good of him," said Jim, "but I don't intend to marry you."

"What?" said Mary.

"I said that I did not intend to marry you. This thing has got to stop. I'm tired of it." And, rising, he departed, leaving the poor girl in tears.

At the same time Jim was discarding Mary Jack was with Jennie.

"Jim," said Jennie, "when are you and I to be married?"

"Never," replied Jack.

"Then is all over between us?" asked Jennie.

"Yes; it is," replied Jack. "This thing has gone far enough. I'm tired of it."

Jack then took his departure, leaving behind him another disconsolate girl.

Neither one said a word to the other about what had transpired, and the next day when the twins were out walking, wearing their proper colors, they met Mary and Jennie. The boys stopped to have a chat, but the two girls passed them by without a look.

"What is the matter now?" asked Jack.

"I don't know," replied Jim, "but something serious must have happened."

"Say," he continued, "what did you say to Jennie yesterday?"

"Oh, nothing," Jack replied, "only told her I was tired of her and refused to marry."

"And you told her that?"

"I did."

"Well, I'll be hanged!" said Jim. "I told Mary the same thing."

"That settles it," said Jack; "we've got to square ourselves somehow."

In the evening they called on the girls and were met in a very frigid manner, but explanations followed, and happiness soon reigned supreme.

One day Jack was called before a professor for violating one of the rules of the college.

"That must be Jim," thought he, "for I have done nothing out of the way."

"However," he continued, "I'll just keep still and see what comes of it."

He soon found out that a tiresome task had been laid out for him which would keep him up half the night.

But Jack did not intend to suffer much for Jim's fault, and the next morning he asked Jim to change ribbons with him.

Jim chanced to appear before the professor who had set the task the day before and of course was taken unawares. He knew nothing about the matter, excepting that he was the guilty one, and the double task put upon him made him pay pretty well for his shortcomings.

One day the twins got badly mixed up as to their identity.

"Are you Jack?" asked the other one day, "or am I?"

"I'll be hanged if I can tell," replied the other. "We have been changing so much of late that I don't know who I am."

When they graduated neither one could tell if he got the right diploma or not, and when they went home they were so badly mixed in their minds that they were hopelessly lost.

As they had grown up together they decided to go into partnership in business, and soon after they married their old time sweethearts, Mary and Jennie, and became happy and prosperous business men.

But they still are in doubt as to their identity, and Mary does not know but what she is married to Jim, while Jennie is sometimes positive that she married Jack.

FASCINATING FURS

Comfortable and Artistic Fashions in Muffs and Other Things.

Muffs are certainly entrancing. They are big, for warmth; loosely stuffed, for comfort; of various shapes, to afford a pleasing play of taste in their selection and use. "Cushion shape," "melon shape," "barrel shape"—so runs the description, and the old round form well known to everybody is still in sight. Somebody has called the cushion shaped ermine affair "the muff of the winter." Heart shaped is one of the fancy specimens in long haired fur—sable, perhaps, or fox—and quite captivating it is.

The popularity of mole, ermine and chinchilla in furs this winter is becoming more than a twice told tale, but so long as they are presented in such charming guise as the chinchilla coat of the accompanying cut one will go on admiring and talking about them. Here, too, the new fashions in the way of garniture, fringe, lace and decorative buttons are shown.

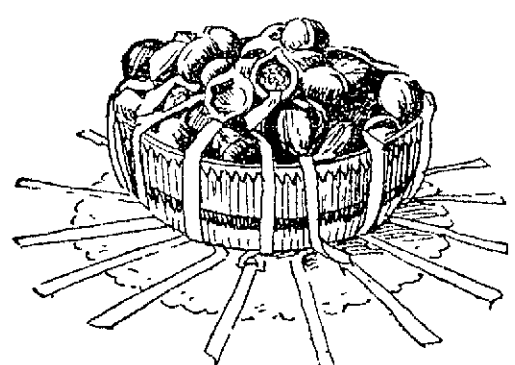

Stoles and peleries simply bewilder one with their variety. Fur of some kind one must have to be in the swim; if not a coat, then a set of furs, or at least a necklet. ETHEL W. BUSH.

Apple Snow.
Peel and grate one large sour apple, sprinkling over it a small cupful of powdered sugar to keep the apple from turning dark. Break over this the whites of two eggs and beat the mixture constantly for half an hour. Care should be used to prepare the snow in a large mixing bowl, as it beats up very stiff and light. Make a thin custard of one pint of milk, a pinch of salt and half a cup of sugar. When the milk is boiling hot remove from the fire and add the yolks of two well beaten eggs and a teaspoonful of vanilla or lemon extract. Thoroughly cool the custard, heap the snow high in a cut glass bowl and pour the custard around it. Set the dish in the ice box until ready for use.—Exchange.

Plain Candies.
Taffy.—Two cupfuls of molasses, one cupful of brown sugar, butter the size of an egg, one tablespoonful of vinegar and, to be added last, a pinch of soda. Put all together in a kettle and boil twenty minutes. Cool in shallow tins and pull.

Popcorn Balls.—In a large kettle make a sirup with a cupful of sugar, a tablespoonful of butter and three tablespoonfuls of water. Boil till the sirup threads, then pour in three quarts of popped corn and stir quickly till well mixed in. Take from the fire, stir a little while and when cooled enough shape into balls.

Satisfactory Portieres.
Double faced velours portieres may be obtained in lovely soft colorings that will harmonize with almost any fittings—old rose on one side and green on the other or cream color and green or old rose and cream. Stewed Celery.
Cut parts of celery not suitable for salad in little pieces. Cook in one cup of water till tender. Add one-half cup of cream to celery water, bind with white roux and season with salt and pepper. The tender, bleached leaves may be stewed with the stalks.

MEASURING HEAT.

How Science Determines Exact Degree of High Temperatures.

Until within a comparatively recent period the man in charge of one of the very hot ovens used in many industrial operations, such, for example, as the making of pottery or the manufacture of various kinds of glass, could only judge the heat of his oven by looking at it. Nowadays, however, as a result of the increasing demand for heat experts, pyrometry is taught as an exact science.

Even the most expert optical judgment, as was shown in a series of experiments made at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Boston at the time when heat measurement was first being established as an important study for the schools of technology, could not tell the heat of an oven of over 2,500 degrees with more than approximate accuracy. Pyrometry, however, has invented instruments that can exactly measure heat that is thousands of degrees above and cold that falls hundreds of degrees below the zero point.

One of the simpler instruments for determining a high temperature is the calorimeter. A ball of nickel or platinum is heated in the furnace whose temperature is to be tested and dropped into water. The water will immediately rise in temperature, and the change having been noted by a thermometer, the amount of heat generated by the furnace itself may be readily calculated. Another interesting device is a small torpedo guaranteed to explode when exposed to a certain degree of heat, and there are various mechanisms that may be connected directly with ovens.

Modern pyrometry deals with cold as well as heat and has yet other instruments for measuring the lowest obtainable temperatures. One of the most curious of these is the so called thermopion, an electrical measuring instrument with a telephone attachment. The device is connected with a coil exposed to the temperature under question, so that a man in the central station of a refrigerating plant can hear reports from each without the necessity of making a daily inspection of all the local thermometers.

Trade Methods.

Facts came recently to the attention of the London Chronicle which the editor hopes do not make quite a representative comparison between English and American trade methods.

A manufacturer in Florence who makes boxes of a novel design and character, especially suitable for jewelers, submitted, post free, a sample box to a leading firm in the United Kingdom, accompanying the same with a letter. His letter, marked over with a huge cross, was returned to him with an indignant rebuke for his presumption and notice that the box would be returned unopened.

At about the same time this same gentleman sent a letter and sample parcel to a leading jeweler in the United States, equally unknown to him personally, and, though the American had to pay 60 per cent duty before he could open the packet, he accepted it, with results which have proved advantageous to both parties.

Coffee For Wornout Nags.

A simple and valuable remedy for restoring wornout horses is reported by a German naturalist, Herr Martin. He says he bought a horse which "was then almost a skeleton and so weak it could hardly walk" and began giving it coffee, sometimes in the form of infusions of the roasted beans and at other times ground and mixed with honey. Soon the horse began to improve, and after a few months Herr Martin had the opportunity to sell it for $250. The German says he has brought round by the same treatment many horses which had been overworked or were run down, with loss of strength and appetite.

Scientifically Made Glass.

In a recent lecture at Oxford Professor Raphael Meldola described the rapid progress in the development of the glassmaking industry in Germany. Since the improvement of the microscope and the telescope lay with the maker of the glass, a glassmaker, a chemist and a physician united their efforts, and the result was the now world renowned Jena glass. Glass can now be made with almost any optical properties that may be desired. The manufacture has been placed upon a strictly scientific footing.

A Pet Crow.

C. A. Creighton of Thomaston, Me., has a crow that was given him when young, and now the bird is so tame that it flies through the streets, lights on fences, hobbles into dooryards and is nearly everybody's pet. It is said that the bird will go to the school-house grounds and wait for Mr. Creighton's boy to come out, will accompany him home and then fly down Knox street to meet Mr. Creighton when he comes to dinner.

Rhode Island's Great Oak.
Perfect in its shape, the largest oak tree in western Rhode Island, if not in the entire state, stands on what is called the old Parker place, at Greene, in the town of Coventry. It grew from an acorn and is at least 150 years old. The tree has a spread of branch of 100 feet, and its trunk is thirteen feet in circumference and from three to six feet through. The tree is believed to be good for at least half a century more.

Those who will persist in closing their ears against the continual recommendations of Dr. Kings New Discovery for consumption, will have a long bitter fight with their troubles, if not ended earlier by fatal termination. Read what T. R. Beall of Beall, Miss., has to say: "Last fall my wife had every symptom of consumption. She took Dr. Kings New Discovery after everything else had failed. Improvement came at once and four bottles entirely cured her." Guaranteed by John E. Daly, druggist. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

LIVER TROUBLES
"I find Theford's Black Draught a good medicine for liver troubles. It cured my son after he had spent $100 with doctors. It is all the medicine I take."—MRS. CAROLINE MARTIN, Parkersburg, W. Va.
If your liver does not act regularly go to your druggist and secure a package of Theford's Black Draught and take a dose tonight. This great family medicine frees the congested bowels, stirs up the torpid liver and causes a healthy secretion of bile.
Theford's Black Draught will cleanse the bowels of impurities and strengthen the kidneys. A torpid liver invites colds, influenza, chills and fever and all manner of sickness and discomfort. Weak kidneys result in bladder disease which often causes many distressing ailments. A 2-cent package of Theford's Black Draught should always be kept in the house.
"I used Theford's Black Draught for my kidney troubles and found it to be a great medicine."—J. H. COLEMAN, Danvers, Ill.

It's nice to meet.
In store or street,
A pretty girl, whatever the weather.
Her smile so sweet,
Her form petite,
Induce the man to wonder whether
The fabled days
Of elves and faes
Have passed or still are here among us.
The illusion stays,
Though many ways
Some other maiden may have strung us.
But yet—
'Tis the frosty morning beauty as to which I now would speak
When each blessed, blooming maiden has a rose in either cheek.
Her eyes a gleam,
Her breath a steam,
Her lips as red as finest coral;
Her face a dream
Of peach and cream,
Such ravings can't be quite immoral.
Her form erect,
Air circumspect,
And yet she's flesh and blood, they tell us!
You'd not suspect
The least defect;
Her clinging neck furs make you jealous.
Ah, yes,
'Tis the frosty morning beauty in whose praise I faint would speak
When each blessed, blooming maiden wears a rose in either cheek.

One Thing to Avoid.
"Yes," said the great man, "I am going to write a book of personal recollections. I think I am prominent enough to do that, don't you?"
"Oh, yes, you're prominent enough, but I'd like to caution you about one thing."
"What's that?"
"For the purposes of publication don't recollect anything about prominent men now living."
"But they're just the people I want to write about. They are the kind of reminiscences that will make the book sell."
"Oh, well, suit yourself, but remember that I warned you."
"What's the danger?"
"Why, just as soon as you begin to recollect things about them they will begin to recollect things about you."
"I hadn't thought about that," remarked the great man.—Cincinnati Post.
No Apology Needed.
As the car struck a curve the man with a strap lurching forward and stepped clumsily on the sifter's shoe.
"I beg your pardon," he said. "I didn't mean to step on your foot."
"Don't apologize," replied the sifter, smiling. "It isn't mine."
"Isn't yours?" asked the stander, raising his eyebrows.
"Not yet," replied the sifter. "You see, it's wood, and I'm buying it on the installment plan."—Cincinnati Times-Star.

A Severe Task.
"You should strive to appeal to the imagination and the human interest of your pupils," said the principal.

CONNOR FOR GOVERNOR.

Marshfield Man Will Probably be the Next LaFollette Nominee.

It begins to appear as if W. D. Connor had been slated for the next nominee for governor by that branch of the republican party popularly known as the half-breeds.

Mr. Connor is a resident of Marshfield and is well known in this city, being a member of the county board, and a lumberman of more than ordinary prominence. As to how the stalwart papers of the state will take the nomination of Mr. Connor cannot be said at this time, but it is thought by some that the entire republican party will unite in electing Mr. Connor to the office. The following from the Marshfield Times, a stalwart paper, and one that has opposed the present governor with all its might and main, may be interesting at this time.

That the nomination of Mr. Connor would be one of the wisest moves the republican party could make is a fact generally recognized, and if Gov. LaFollette disavows any aspirations for a third term and gives his hearty support to the Marshfield lumberman, his action will win universal commendation, and the approval of liberal minded opponents of the present administration will be assured. From the standpoint of geographical location, ability, integrity and personal popularity Mr. Connor would be an ideal candidate and deserve the undivided support of the republican party.

Mr. Connor is not a politician in the ordinary sense of the word and has always avoided public office. He is a public spirited citizen, ever faithful and loyal to his home state, section and city, and liberal in his encouragement of public institutions and improvements. This city owes him much for the interest he has shown in its affairs and the liberal donations he has made for library and school purposes, and if he accepts the nomination for governor he will have the united support of this section of the state.

In speaking of Mr. Connor's probable candidacy, the Marshfield News, a democratic paper, has to say:

"If Mr. Connor can be induced to sacrifice his business interests to the extent of entering the field as a candidate, there is no office within the gift of the state that his capabilities would not entitle him to receive, be it congressman, senator or governor. He is a clear headed, successful business man, a practical thinker, with quick, keen perception, and an intuitive knowledge of the springs which control the action of men as individuals, and herein lies his power to accomplish wonderful results. He is a man more of action than of words, and is not a theorist in any sense of the term. If named as the republican nominee for governor the people would be assured a progressive business administration."

Of course Mr. Connor is on the wrong side of the fence for the Tribune to say very much in favor of him. However, there is no doubt but what he would favor the people of the state with a good business administration were he elected to the office. He takes the Tribune and pays for it regularly every year, which is one great point in his favor, and enough to cause almost any newspaper man to support him without reservation. We would like to see him get the nomination, anyway, and then if he is elected, we feel that there will be more doing down at Madison than there has been for some time past.

Recollections of '61.

The following letter was recently received by W. E. Gardner, from an old comrade of his who was with him during the war of the rebellion. While the letter was mostly of a personal nature, still there are some of the experiences of the boys in blue chronicled that will no doubt prove interesting to those who take any interest in matters of this kind.

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 13.

Sergeant Gardner, Centralia, Wis.
Dear Sir:-- I met you on the train one year ago, in the fall of 1892, and found that you and my father were old friends and comrades at General Logan's headquarters. Father was on the general's staff and you a sergeant at headquarters.

I was down home this summer on a visit and was telling father I had met the American Eagle. I had heard him speak of you very often. Father was much pleased to hear from you and requested me to write to you as he has been badly used up with rheumatism. He and myself, in company with two or three of his old comrades in the army, were sitting in the shade when my father told of some of your army experiences. He was sorry to hear that you had been afflicted with cancer and had partly lost your speech.

He said that you were a good talker and good company and a daredevil rider the year and a half you were at headquarters; that you had ridden more miles and quicker and faster than any orderly in the division. The sergeant never favored the road, but went over fences and ditches—anything for a short cut. General Logan gave him the name of American Eagle, and he went by that name while I knew him. Gardner was a favorite with the general and had the choice of his best horses. He had some pretty close calls of seeing Libby prison. He went thru the siege of Vicksburg, Missionary Ridge, battle of Champion Hill, battle of Big Black River, Altoona, Nashville, and so on.

A few days after the battle of Chattanooga the sergeant ran into a squad of rebel cavalry. As usual he made for the timber but in clearing a fence his horse stumbled and threw him into a pile of old rails and I think knocked out one or two front teeth. He lost his horse and dispatch. They had a major that had been badly wounded in the shoulder and they sent him with a captain and two guards to the nearest station some twenty miles away. Gardner and four other prisoners were sent along, the balance of the cavalry taking another route. As the major was bleeding badly they stopped at a plantation to have his wound bandaged. They put the five prisoners in a log shanty for safe keeping with a guard outside.

While they were busy with the major Gardner shoved up a window in the back part of the shanty and jumping onto the major's horse, lost no time in making himself scarce in that locality. You bet he picked out the best horse, and he was a good one. The captain and two guards followed for a mile or so, but the sergeant had two or three minutes start and he showed them a clean pair of heels. They fired eight or ten shots and as it was getting dark they gave up the chase.

The sergeant was in a strange place, but made for a bluff or hill in the distance where he stayed all night. At the break of day he made for camp, where he arrived half starved and nearly frozen, for the weather was cold, being about the 27th or 28th of December. I can remember the incident quite plainly and I will bet Gardner will never forget it.

Gardner gave General Logan the horse in place of the one he had lost and the general gave him $150 to boot, and Gardner kept a $50 saddle and two fine silver mounted revolvers.

He made me a present of one of the revolvers, which I still have and value very highly. Tell him it is among my army relics and I often think of him and two Iowa chums of his, Major Mabley, 8th Iowa cavalry and Capt. Sam Gilbert, 2nd Iowa cavalry. Fine dashing officers. I don't think there were any better horsemen in the division than those three Iowans. The sergeant could stand and turn a summersault backward or forward as easy as one can turn his hand. It was great sport to have the young darlings try the trick. They generally ran their head in the sand up to their shoulders, their head being as far as they could get over.

Tell the sergeant that I am in my 78th year, and he isn't any spring chicken himself, he must be at least 72 or 73 years old. I send him and his old friends and mine my best regards and wishes, if they are still on earth. The old soldiers are nearly all gone from here, sergeant, and our turn is coming. Let us be prepared and face that as we did the Rebs. If you can write yet let me hear from you.

Yours truly,
Capt. G. Wilson,
17th Ill. Cav.

An Old Timer.

A specimen of the genus homo oozed into the office on Monday and stood up before the stove in such an apologetic manner that one glance told us that he was what is known as a "tramp print."

He remarked that it was a cold day, and for the sake of being sociable, we agreed with him, altho, as a matter of fact, it was not especially cold, and the sun was shining quite cheerfully outside.

After waiting long enough not to seem precipitate he came to the point and asked if the force could not scare up enough ready cash to buy him a dinner, incidentally mentioning that he was also looking for work.

As it was strongly suspected that he wanted booze worse than he did work, he was told to come around just before dinner time and he would be taken to one of the hash houses in the city where he could revel in the best that the place afforded.

This seemed to take the wind out of his sails just a trifle, but he promised to be on deck when grub time came around, and went out.

After he had left it occurred to the force to give him some work when he came back, and thus actually try how much he was really looking for work. He evidently made a miscalculation in his time, or else his chronometer had run down, for he got back to the office about eleven o'clock, and his breath smelled suspiciously as if he had been associating with a distillery since his last visit.

However, he was asked if he really wanted to go to work, and upon answering in the affirmative, he was given a box of "pi," not the kind you have for Christmas dinner, and told to tear loose.

He took the box of pi, made about three bluffs at distributing some of it, and then said he was willing to work, but he would be dinged if he would distribute pi. He staggered out of the door and the last seen of him he was vanishing into the friendly portal of a nearby saloon, where, no doubt he was able to obtain the panacea necessary to heal his wounded feelings from the insult he had received.

There was a time in the good old days, which is the time that existed just before any of us can remember, when there was a class of journeymen printers who traveled about thru the country, working a few days here and a few there, not satisfied to remain in any one place, and if reports can be believed, they were printers. They could do anything from washing a roller to writing an editorial, and the advent of one of these knights of the road was often hailed with delight at the country print shop, as printers were scarce, and often the tourist blew in just when he was needed.

This has all changed, however, and the tramp printer who is on the road today is generally a tramp in every sense of the word, without any of the qualifications that go to make up a handy man about a printing office. It is the same in the printing business as elsewhere. The man who is addicted to the excessive use of liquor soon becomes more of a nuisance than a help, and there are now very few places where the old time habitual drinker will be tolerated. Most of the alleged printers who travel about the country are men who have acquired a smattering of the business with the slang phrases that generally denote the workman in any trade, and with stock of knowledge for a working capital they manage to graft out a miserable existence from those who are engaged in the business.

Mr. de Nevers has with him a number of fine paintings, some of his own execution, and others of the old masters that he has purchased at a good round sum. Mr. de Nevers some time ago purchased a masterpiece in Italy which he had intended to bring to this country with him, but he found after he had made the purchase that the law of Italy prohibited the shipment of these works of the old masters out of the country, and there was nothing for him to do but sell the painting back to the original owner for about one-half what he had paid for it. As it cost something like $500,000, the loss was considerable.

DR. H. McELWEE,
Chicago's Leading Specialist.

Will visit Grand Rapids
Saturday,
January 2
AT WITTER HOUSE
For ONE DAY ONLY and every fourth week thereafter.

CHRONIC DISEASES

Successfully treated by the latest scientific method as practiced in the principal hospitals of Europe and America. Consultation and Examination Free. Many leading citizens will testify to the successful results obtained during the several years of my practice in Grand Rapids.

No Sufferer Need Despair.

I have cured hundreds. Why need you suffer? All cases of Stomach and Bowel Trouble quickly cured. A month's trial of my special remedies will convince those afflicted.

Kidney and Bladder Diseases receive a new and most successful treatment.

I have the greatest success in treating Nervous Diseases, Epilepsy (commonly called Fits) and Chorea (St. Vitus Dance) promptly yield in the great majority of cases to my special treatment.

PILES quickly cured without the use of the knife, painlessly and with no detention from business on the part of the patient.

The Age Demands a Specialist

Who is fitted through special studies in his laboratories and investigation in the largest medical centers in the world to offer afflicted humanity a reasonable guarantee that they will be CURED, not temporarily relieved or stimulated, but CURED TO STAY CURED.

Cure is Guaranteed in Every Case Accepted

In adopting the most modern medical methods, I have not abandoned CLEAN MEDICAL PRACTICE but am ever ready to sacrifice purely commercial gain if in any way I can help my patient more rapidly or more certainly to health.

Men's Diseases

I have devised a special treatment as the result of my investigation in Europe as well as in America, that insures immediate relief and a permanent cure in cases of Varicocele, Hydrocele, Weakening Losses, Gonorrhea, Gleet, Blood Poison, inherited or acquired, and all diseases resulting from early excesses or indiscretions. Men suffering from chronic diseases who do not get well will be surprised and delighted by a trial of my special treatment for nervous weakness. Your physical, mental and business welfare depends on your nervous vitality. Let me make you a man again.

CONSTIPATION PERMANENTLY CURED

Diseases of the Liver—How many sick people in every community, due to this important organ's inaction. The greatest laboratory in our body abused and neglected. Let me help you to get this "workshop" going again. My treatment gives unfailing and prompt relief in these cases.

Diseases of Women

I have been a patient student of the many diseases affecting womankind. I know that time and again her life and the most charming attributes of her sex are sacrificed to the surgeon's knife, cruelly and needlessly. I have the pleasure of being able to announce to this class of sufferers that I have perfected a plan of treatment that will within five days demonstrate to any woman its power to cure the most difficult and distressing case.

My charges are always reasonable and never more than you will be willing to pay for successful treatment. I practice no schemes to invite business and refer to my several years of successful and honorable practice in your midst as a guarantee of fair and square dealing. ENGLISH, GERMAN and FRENCH spoken. Consultations are invited free by mail. All correspondence and interviews strictly confidential.

room in district number one and added a teacher to the force. Three new districts have been organized during the past year—No. 7 Remington, St. 2 Remington and Dexter and No. 7 Milladore. School houses have been built in No. 6 town of Rock, No. 1 town of Richfield, No. 6 town of Hansen, No. 4 town of Seneca, No. 7 town of Remington and Dexter. The buildings have been enlarged in No. 3 town of Arpin and No. 2 town of Marshfield. With a few exceptions the school houses are in fairly good condition. Two or three of the districts having the worst buildings are planning to replace them with new ones during the coming year.

The annual institute of three weeks duration was held at Grand Rapids, July 27 to August 14, with Prin. M. J. Jackson of the Wood County Training School, C. H. Dietz of West Bend and Martie L. Larkin of Grand Rapids as conductors. The total enrollment at the institute was 102 and the average attendance 86. Of those in attendance 2 held state certificates, 3 held first grade county certificates, 21 held second grade county certificates and 49 held third grade county certificates. Fourteen had attended normal school, 75 high school and 18 had attended common school only. The interest in the work of the institute was good and the results are to be seen in the quality of the work done in the county schools this year.

(An itemized account of the above on file in the office of the county clerk.) Since entering upon the duties of my office I have made 161 official visits. I find much that is encouraging in the work. The teachers are a rule earnest and enthusiastic in their work. The majority of the school officers are doing all in their power to better the conditions in their districts, yet the work is not ideal. The possibilities in the field of education are infinite. Nowhere is the truth more plainly to be seen as "eternal vigilance is the price of excellence."

Thanking this board, the school officers and teachers of this county for their loyalty and hearty co-operation and trusting that I may merit and receive a continuance of the same, I am, Yours truly

Co. Supt. of Schools.

—Daniel L. Hart whose "Parish Priest" in the hands of Daniel Sully has become an established road success and C. E. Callahan author of "Coon Hollow" and "Foggy's Ferry" have written in collaboration a new drama called "Slaves of the Mine" a story of the coal fields near Wilkes-Barre which is Mr. Hart's home. It is based upon a law peculiar to Pennsylvania by virtue of which a deed conveying land does not pass the ores beneath the surface unless specially provided for. One of the scenes is the bottom of a coal shaft with coal cars and elevator in actual use and culminating in the destruction of the mine by fire damp. The characters are drawn from life, the language is natural, bright and witty. It will be given at the grand opera house Monday night, Dec. 28th, with a capable company, among whom are Frederick Reynolds, Jos. R. Kettler, Howard Brandon, Jos. G. Gibson, Wm. B. Daly and Alice Hamilton and others, and the Eagle quartette. The play has an exciting plot, intense climaxes, and entire special scenery. Lamberts full orchestra will furnish the music.

The Limited "Took"

The Southwest Limited, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul's superb new Chicago - Kansas City train, "took." When she made her initial trip Sunday night, all the available space was taken, and before noon yesterday, and before all the sleeping and compartment car sections had been taken for last night's trip. An additional sleeping car was put on, and it, too, was sold out.

"We are pleased with the reception and treatment we have received from Kansas City and Kansas City people," said General Passenger Agent Miller before he left for Chicago. "They have shown appreciation of our effort to give them the best of service, and we think they will be well pleased with it. Our new train has started with a boom of good feeling, and we intend to keep it up. It gives the Milwaukee three of the best trains in the country and we are proud of them."—Kansas City Journal, Tuesday, Dec. 8.

—You may be thinking of building next spring and if so you will want to buy a lot. Before doing so you should see Mrs. F. P. Daly, who has some very convenient property on both sides of the river.
